

Dr. C. Allgulander

Christer Allgulander, born in 1947, is an associate professor of psychiatry and a senior lecturer at the Karolinska Institutet. His professional and academic training was undertaken at the Karolinska Institutet and affiliated hospitals. His current line of research is to study the clinical presentations and prognosis of patients with anxiety disorders, to explore the genetics of morbid anxiety, and to develop new treatments. He develops digital educational aids for undergraduate and postgraduate training of physicians, nurses and allied professions in health care.